Couple Wins Tough Race With Stork

A son was born Friday morning to Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Bange, Westminster R. 7, at the Warner hospital.

Mrs. Bange was admitted to the hospital after her trip to Gettysburg was delayed by several circumstances. Mr. and Mrs. Bange started for the hospital at about midnight, but because of unfamiliarity with the route, Bange, who was driving his car, got on the Littlestown-Hanover road. His car broke down several miles from Hanover and he aroused a nearby resident to inform him of his plight. The Hanover ambulance was called and conveyed Mrs. Bange to the Hanover General hospital. On arrival there it was made known she had arranged earlier for admission to the Gettysburg hospital.

The ambulance rushed her to Gettysburg, an easy winner in the race with the stork.

HOSPITAL BOARD GIVEN REPORTS ON BUSY MONTH

With 255 admittances and an average daily census of 73 patients, the Warner hospital had one of its busiest months in February, the report submitted to the regular March meeting of the board of directors in the Musselman annex building Friday night revealed.

Sixty babies were born during the 28-day month—31 males and 29 females.

Receipts in February aggregated $23,777.20 while expenditures were $20,695.15. Included in the receipts was the $2,600 state appropriation for the quarter ending November 30, 1949. Receipts of the state funds improved the cash position of the hospital raising the funds on hand from $3,115.01 at the end of January to $6,197.06 at the end of February.

Defend Prepayment Plan

From a bookkeeping standpoint the February operation was favorable, also. The hospital's earned income for the month was $21,180.18 which after deduction of operating expenses of $19,097.26 left an operating balance of $2,082.92. This, however, was offset by writeoffs of charity in excess of the state appropriation in the amount of $2,993.97.

Much of the session was taken up with discussion of routine and fiscal problems. The directors asked for better understanding of the (Continued on Page 6)

NAME ROUTE 15 INTERCHANGE ON TURNPIKE

The Pennsylvania Turnpike commission has announced that the interchange on the Philadelphia extension of the turnpike with U.S. Route 15, the Gettysburg-Harrisburg road, will be known officially as the "Gettysburg Pike" interchange.

The interchange will permit turnpike traffic leaving the state's superhighway where it crosses over Route 15 a short distance north of Shepherdstown. It was decided to locate an interchange at this point because of the historical significance of Gettysburg, and the action is expected to bring many tourists here from the turnpike.

The names of other interchanges, as adopted officially by the commission, are as follows:

Western Extension: at the Ohio border, Gateway; at Route 19, Beaver; at Route 19, Perry highway; at Route 8, North Pittsburgh; at Route 28, Oakmont; at Route 22, Pittsburgh.

Other Interchanges

Eastern extension: At Route 11, Carlisle, instead of the present name of Middlesex; at Route 15, Gettysburg Pike; at Route 24, near present U.S. Route 111, Harrisburg-West Shore; at Legislative Route 22019, near U.S. Route 230, (Highspire and Steelton), Harrisburg-East; at Route 72, Lebanon-Lancaster; at Route 222, Reading; at Route 122, Morgantown; at Route 100, Downingtown; at Route 202, Valley Forge.

The names of the interchanges on the present turnpike have not been changed, and are as follows: from west to east, Irwin, New Stanton, Donegal, Somerset, Bedford, Breeseville, Ft. Littleton, Willow Hill and Blue Mountain.

For the 327 miles of the completed Pennsylvania turnpike, there will be 24 interchanges. All, the commission says, are conveniently located at the junctions of principal roads, affording easy access for motorists to reach recreational and historical points of interest, as well as industrial centers from one end of the state to the other.

Excessive speed on the part of the car in which they were riding, plus a collision with a car operated by Wayne Hess were described by an Adams county coroner's jury Friday afternoon as the reasons why a car containing three Dickinson college students smashed through a fence and plummeted to the bottom of a Bethlehem Steel quarry near Hanover early Sunday morning.

The car in which the three young men met their deaths was "traveling in at least 70 miles an hour" when it struck a five-foot two-inch fence along the quarry, leaped the fence, broke off an inch and a half sapling and hurtled to the quarry bottom, State Policeman Robert Brady estimated in giving testimony to the jury at the court house.

Adding that "they had to be going that fast to have done what they did," Brady refused to estimate how fast the car may have been traveling before it began its fatal trip over the brow of the 140 foot deep quarry.

Hess Released On Bail

"The fact that there are skid marks for 66 feet before they hit Hess' car, the far of the impact, the fact that they skidded for 18 feet more after hitting and then traveled 90 feet more before hitting the fence would indicate that they must have been going much faster than that originally, because the skidding and crash would have slowed the car somewhat," Brady noted.

CHICAGO WHITE SOX MAY PROVE BIG SURPRISE

Pasadena, March 25 (AP)—It seems only yesterday when rival American league managers would relax and quit beating their children at news that the Chicago White Sox were coming to town.

It was not, in fact, until well into the '49 season that seven brother pilots awakened to the painful realization that old Jack Onslow in his freshman season had roused a latent hostility in the Comiskey Park crew and that they no longer were to be trusted.

By the time the race ended, the Sox were not welcome anywhere. They had won 12 more games than in the previous year and had climbed from the cellar to a vigorous sixth place.

Now Onslow, driving his young team hard and cantankerously through another training grind, thinks he might just possibly climb past a couple more clubs in the coming race.

Without much doubt, the Sox have strengthened during the winter. Credit for this goes to the steady digging of Frank Lane, the team's general manager.

Third Baseman Hank Majeski was obtained from the Athletics. Hank was beamed last year and slumped, but two seasons ago he belted 310 and knocked across 120 runs for the A's. He could help.

Carrasquel Promising
In possibly his best deal, the Sox boss talked Branch Rickey out of Alfonso (Chico) Carrasquel, the sweetest looking young shortstop to come along in some years. Chico, a Venezuelan, speaks no English. But he hit .315 at Fort Worth last season and has fielded sensationally in exhibition games this spring.

Luke Appling is certain to start his 20th campaign at short. But Luke, at 41, finally has slowed a step, and it will not be surprising if Carrasquel sees more and more action as the season advances.

With him in there, and with the brilliant Cass Michaels on second, the Sox will present about as fine a young keystone combination as the American league affords. Michaels hit .308 last year and drove in 83 runs.

With Michaels, Gus Zernial and Majeski clustered in their batting order, the Sox can present a potential punch to make opposing pitchers think deeply. An added threat might be Gerry Scala, a young outfielder, who hit .341 for Indianapolis after starting last season with the Sox. Dave Philley, a solid 286 clubber last year, is, with Zernial, an outfield fixture.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 25 (AP)—Robert (Red) Haire who coaches the once-great Rhode Island state basketball team, claims to be the only basketball coach around town who didn't have a "great" bunch of freshmen this year. "We have nothing much coming up but a tough schedule," Red mourns. Dottie Julian, looking harassed but happy in his new role as Dartmouth coach, disagrees. "I haven't seen what we have, but they tell me it isn't much," Dottie admits. "Maybe I'll have to look around New Jersey a bit." (That's where Julian found his Holy Cross players a few years ago.)

GRUNT AND GROAN

Pro wrestling promoters are in Frank Rogel, rugged Penn State fullback, but Fran isn't interested in them—for one good reason. Fran tried wrestling once in college. He took on George Jones of Temple in 1948 and won in the last second by brute strength, rather than skill. As Bob Higgins describes it: "The referee leads Francis off the mat, the winner... but for Rogel is gasping for breath and walking on rubber legs. He never was so exhausted in his life."

SPORTS BEFORE YOUR EYES

Jim Cain, the speedy Army halfback who busted an ankle in a track meet this winter, reports it is mending nicely and he expects to be ready for football. Professional comment on the Washington Redskins' announcement that Clark Shaughnessy will be their "advisory coach on the West Coast": "He should be a lot of help when they're playing the Eagles in Philadelphia."

Baseball Briefs

Phil's Chances Brighter

Clearwater, Fla., March 25 (AP)—Manager Eddie Sawyer felt years younger today as he sent his Philadelphia Phillies against the Boston Braves. Why?

Pitcher Russ Meyer, chipped elbow and all, pitched five innings yesterday and allowed five hits and one run as the Phillies walloped the Washington Senators 13 to 3. Only a week ago it had been feared Meyer—a 17-game winner last year—would be out for half the season with a fractured elbow. The slim pitcher said he felt fine after the game and that the elbow didn't bother him.

Then too, the Phillies' infield of First Baseman Eddie Waitkus, Second Sacker Mike Gollat, Shortstop Granny Hamner and Third Baseman Willie Jones turned in their fourth straight errorless game.

A's Win Gift Game

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 25 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics turned in their second triple play of the spring training season but Owner-manager Connie Mack was anything but happy about his club's fielding.

The A's came up with five errors yesterday as they won a "gift game" from their Buffalo farmhands 10 to 9. The A's scored five runs in the ninth inning without the benefit of a hit. The Macks and the International league Buffalo team go at it again today and the 87-year-old dean of baseball managers is looking for more professional field work from his American league pennant aspirants.

Bucs Depend On Pair

San Francisco, Calif., March 25 (AP)—Manager Billy Meyer of the Pittsburgh Pirates, says the Bucs' first division chances may rest on a seasoned veteran and a southpaw rookie pitcher.

The veteran is Second Baseman Danny Murtaugh who was sidelined by injuries the last part of the 1949 season. "Murtaugh's physical condition appears sound and he looks like the fellow I knew in 1948," Meyer said today.

The rookie pitcher Meyer is counting on is Southpaw John McCall, former Boston Red Sox property. In 11 innings of exhibition tilts he's given only two earned runs and seven hits.

CCNY FAVORED OVER WOLFPACK QUINT TONIGHT

New York, March 25 (AP)—Underdog North Carolina State will throw its sensational one-two scoring punch at CCNY—battling for its second national title—in tonight's Eastern NCAA Basketball final.

The pride of Dixie is the next-to-last quintet standing in the way of City College of New York's bid for an unprecedented "double." A victory tonight would put the Beavers one game from becoming the first team to win both the national invitation and NCAA titles the same year.

CCNY defeated Bradley last Saturday for the invitation championship.

Even though N. C. State hopes to succeed where the country's No. 1, 2 and 3 teams—Bradley, Ohio State and Kentucky—failed, the odds-makers don't lean south. The local club rates a five-point favorite.

Ohio State also rates five points over Holy Cross in the consolation game (8 p. m. EST.).

The finale is a match of Carolina's racehorse forwards, Sammy Ranzino and Dick Dickey, against a bunch of sophomores who have blown over five ranking opponents in a sensational late-season surge.

Bradley Nips UCLA

Ranzino gave City an indication of what to expect tonight by scoring 32 points in his club's victory over Holy Cross Thursday. That's a new NCAA record. Dickey, who scored 25, also is the Wolfpack playmaker.

Bradley, yearning for another crack at CCNY, is rooting for City to strangle the Wolfpack. The Braves expect little trouble from Baylor in the Western NCAA finale at Kansas City tonight.

The winners of tonight's final games in New York and Kansas City will play in Madison Square Garden Tuesday for the NCAA championship.

UCLA, defeated by Bradley 73-59 last night, is favored over Brigham Young in the Kansas City contest for third.

Airline Crew Wins Battle With Flames

Philadelphia, March 25 (AP)—A United Airlines twin engine cargo plane was landed safely at Philadelphia's International airport Thursday night after the crew fought a dramatic battle against fire. The two men aboard battled the flames for 15 minutes, managing finally to confine them to the area of the automatic direction finder.

Pilot Paul C. Cane of Metuchen, N. J., said he saw smoke coming from the vicinity of the direction finder when the plane was over Lancaster, Pa. The craft was bound from Akron, Ohio, to Newark, New Jersey, with a scheduled stop here.

Cane instructed Co-pilot Frank Parrell to use a hand extinguisher while he radioed the Philadelphia airport tower to have fire equipment on hand. The flames were out when Cane brought the plane to earth.

Judge Williams In Race For Governor

Harrisburg, March 25 (AP)—Judge Charles Scott Williams, of Lycoming county, jumped into the fight for the Republican nomination for governor Friday, threatening a further split in the GOP race for the high office. Williams opened what he termed a "fight-to-the-finish" campaign for the nomination by leveling a sharp broadside against his GOP rivals.

"Thus far, the issue of good government seems to have been lost—so far as other candidates are concerned—in a mad scramble for power and patronage," Williams declared, adding:

"The people of Pennsylvania are entitled to an opportunity to vote for one who is not interested in the boodle and the swag which builds and maintains political machines."

Williams was elected to the bench in Lycoming county in 1943. His term expires in 1954.

CLOSE BATTLES PREDICTED IN PIAA PLAYOFFS

Harrisburg, March 25 (AP)—Homestead, Swoyersville and Westinghouse are only slight favorites in today's crucial Class A regional semi-finals of the PIAA playoffs.

All three contests are rated practically as toss-ups that easily could go either way depending on a few breaks.

The Allentown-Swoyersville clash at the Kingston armory will occupy the major share of the spotlight tonight as the twice-beaten Canaries attempt to stop the fast-driving Sailors.

Swoyersville topped its unbeaten season Thursday night by eliminating Williamsport's District 4 champions, 55-34, with its 6-4 forward Johnny Holdup dropping in 32 points himself. Coach Birney Crum's Canaries are untested in inter-district play after winning the District 11 title.

Also on the agenda in an afternoon (3 p. m.) battle in the Pitt stadium between Homestead, the WPIAL titlist, and Altoona's fast-breaking Mountain Lions of District 6. A Hickory-Westinghouse scrap at Farrell rounds out the card in the evening.

Meanwhile, the lineups for next Tuesday's Class B regional finals were completed last night. Kutztown (District 3) meets Ashley (District 2) at Allentown's Rockne Hall for the Eastern diadem while unbeaten Irwin (District 7) draws Mercer (District 10) at the Pitt stadium.

Class A regional finals will be played next Wednesday night. The Penn Palestra has been selected as the site of the eastern game but the western site will be either Farrell or Pitt stadium. The championship game will be played in the Penn Palestra a week from tonight.

Washington, March 25 (AP)—Despite the powerful opposition it aroused, President Truman is expected to sign a compromise price supports bill sent to the White House after a heated Senate scrap.

After juggling it for two days, the Senate approved the measure yesterday on a 38 to 31 vote. Both its backers and opponents agreed that Mr. Truman probably will make it law. The House had approved it earlier.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LINGERING MAGIC

How often is it that after the departure of a beloved friend, or a noted person, whom we have had the opportunity of meeting, something inspiring seems to linger—like magic. We walk about the room and trace in our mind the very footsteps that one took, the chair he sat in, and the things he noticed, or touched.

We are influenced by others far more than we ever realize. Personalities linger long after the physical form has departed. I have stopped at Inns where I have been told that Washington once stayed, or that Lafayette, Longfellow, or Lincoln once had honored. Such places look as though no one notable had been there—but the thought seems to place a hallowed spirit there.

There is a chair beside my work desk where many famous persons have sat over the years, and I often glance at it and visualize anew the presence of each occupant and recall parts of the conversation. So many people leave behind them something more tangible than their mere memory. Like great books, thoughts of them live on, and are constantly recalled.

The manuscripts and personal signatures of great writers and great men and women are deeply prized, through in the lifetime of their authors, they might have been grossly neglected. I recently looked upon the frail little pamphlet that was Poe's first printed work. As high as $20.00 has been paid for a single copy, of which there has been discovered hardly a dozen! As I looked upon it, there seemed to be a lingering magic to it, for in life Poe knew little else than poverty, trouble, and lack of genuine recognition. Now, however, his name is among the immortals!

The late George Grey Barnard once showed to me a precious little box in which there was a fragment of the fresco work of Michelangelo, with his thumb-print upon it. As I looked at it I could not help but feel within me a lingering magic transferred to me from that great master. And surely, so great a sculptor as Barnard also must have felt it.

It has been said that when a great man dies he leaves a glow of light behind. A light, I might say, that never loses its magic. How life itself may be enshrouded with this same magic!

Riding with Russell

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

by FREDERICK C. RUSSELL
Member S.A.E.

The day isn't too far off when a lot of pocketbooks will also be taken for a springtime overhaul.

Driver Is Top Man

Many a driver won't admit it but the people who go riding as passengers have a lot to do with the way he handles the car. Passengers are often indirectly the cause of accidents. It isn't always a matter of direct intervention with the job at hand or diversion of attention. Rather the psychiatrists are concerned with the insidious effect of the rider on the driver's subconscious mind.

Often the driver is emotionally disturbed because he or she fears criticism. One error leads to another and shortly the driver acts as if inexperienced. Praise by the rider may have a reverse effect if the driver thinks it is insincere or uncalled for. If the passenger owns a better car the operator will unconsciously place too much emphasis on his car's shortcomings. Often a passenger will ask to be taken to an address that calls for using unfamiliar streets or parking lots. Unfamiliarity thus may breed confusion.

Calls for Fluid Change

If the brakes act sluggish during cold weather the chances are that the system needs a flushing and refilling with new and better fluid. This is particularly likely to be the case if the brakes of the car were spongy in hot weather. It is characteristic of inferior brake fluid that the lighter ends will evaporate in hot weather, leaving the too heavy base for cold weather use. This is too heavy for proper use in the brakes winter or summer.

Three to Remember

If the car chatters badly in reverse but does a fair job of smooth starting in low, always let it move forward a little before reversing. This is especially useful when backing uphill and when chatter is most pronounced. Leave the gear in reverse, let the car start to coast forward slightly, then engage the clutch and give it gas.

Moderate speeds are best for keeping the battery up. High speed, especially at night, may actually cause discharge.

That extra car key can be carried somewhere on the frame or a concealed portion of the bumpers by affixing it with masking tape.

Mechanic Joe Speaking

"It's just as wrong as it ever was but millions of motorists still have the oil drained when the engine is cold. This means that sludge doesn't drain off as easily and the job is only half done. Failure to use the car after a greasing is another error that persists. Greasing is always more effective if the car is given a workout.

"I wonder why it is that some of these simple rules are so freely ignored. Many owners still add water to the battery after bringing the car into the garage for the night instead of doing the job after the motor has started in the morning and the car is outside. And you lessen the risk of not getting a start by not weakening the battery solution at night."

New Ones From Old

If some of the plans of the reconditioning specialists come true there should be a lot of better looking used cars on the market from here on. New treatment includes plastic spraying of the luggage compartment, refinishing of the steering wheel and a new method for cold spraying the rusted chromium plated trimmings. Motors are steam cleaned and touched up to look like new. What really looks like the last word is a special deodorant which actually gives a used car that new car smell.

Maybe you've thought of this yourself, but if one of the car's pair of horns isn't blowing and you suspect that the battery is weak the trick is to accelerate the motor and press the horn ring at the same time. The horns then will be feeding from the generator and should give a full blast provided they are in proper working order.

Trouble On Their Hands

Some lads who really know a lot about cars recently found themselves with a red hot problem. Every now and again after the engine was switched off it wouldn't crank for some time. Occasionally it would stall and refuse to re-start. Once during idling it stopped with all the earmarks of having bound up like a reconditioned motor with too tight rings. Not having done any service work on the engine for several years, the owners were at their wit's end for an explanation. Yet the answer was simple enough. This engine was suffering from a bad case of varnish—that especially harmful form of gum which, when heated, causes moving parts to bind together.

Natural Vs. Synthetics

This is hard to believe, but the natural rubber interests are putting on a campaign to sell you, the motorist, the idea that rubber from the tree is better than the kind that is whipped up in the lab. It is not a surprise to the tire people because for some time the fellows who have been right on the firing line mending tubes and checking wear on shoes have been extremely pleased with synthetic rubber. Tubes made of one of the popular formulae have rather general preference over natural rubber tubes which are now available. I recently discarded two of the latter, one having torn badly.

Certainly there is a place for natural rubber, but synthetics have come a long way. Watch for a real battle here.

Keep Them In Mind

If you have removed the heat tube to the automatic choke control be sure not to turn up the nut too tightly when replacing it. Tightness here may change the position of the thermostat adjusting cover.

Many people drive for years without realizing that on some cars it is important to depress the accelerator pedal before the automatic choke control will return the choke to the cold start position. This is not the same as pumping on the accelerator to enrich the mixture. They finally set the choke control by nervously pumping on the pedal, but this often causes the motor to choke up when it starts.

Q What would cause the engine of my car to vary in speed when idling? This is particularly noticeable after it is well warmed up. J. G. D.

A There is an air leak around the intake system, and also around the worn valve stem guide. You don't notice the trouble when the engine is cold because the choke automatically enriches the mixture.

Q Is it all right to clean the motor with kerosene. Steam cleaning seems to take the paint off. William K.

A Kerosene is all right, but disconnect and remove the battery first. Q When I crank the motor sometimes the starter-motor just spins over with no action from the engine. What's wrong? G. L.

A Just an old-fashioned case of the starter drive being on the sick list. Either its shaft is gummy or the spring is weak.

Q There seems to be more oil in the engine after it has been started and then switched off than when I check it before starting. Ever hear of anything on this order? R. R. T.

A This might be due to water leaking into the crankcase via the cylinders. Better check the water level in the radiator before and after running the motor. Let's check into this further.

Q There's a bad vibration in my car at road speed, and I get it whether or not the engine is running. All four tires and wheels have been balanced. N. McB.

A Check for a whipping propeller shaft or loose universal joints.

Q I'd like to get more speed from my car. Can I buy a 3 to 1 rear axle ratio to fit it? N. K.

A Axle ratio alone isn't going to give you more speed. For speed power is always needed. Your car is definitely underpowered to start with. Frankly, I'd give up the idea with this car anyway. Moreover, you'll live longer.

Q I am not getting very good gas mileage from my car. The motor was reboiled and fitted with new pistons about 5,000 miles back. Would the stiffness of the engine have anything to do with this mileage drop?

F. D. E.

A Not at this late date. The chances are that the motor is again getting into bad shape. However, don't forget the importance of your driving habits. Some experts figure this as half the battle.

Q After running at speeds of 45 mph for some time and then slowing down, the engine runs very rough. Carburetor trouble? N. N. V.

A No, sticky valves. Use some valve oil in the crankcase.

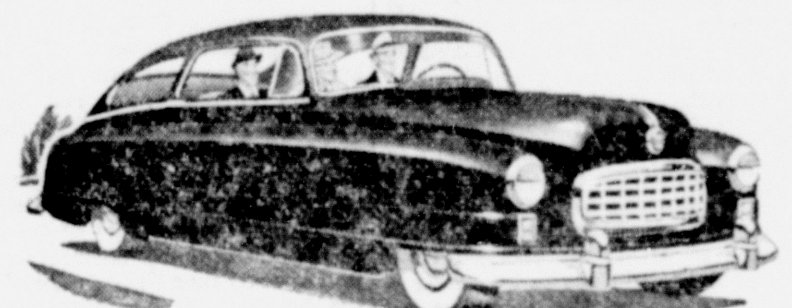

Mr. Russell will answer questions regarding the safe care and operation of your car. Just address him at 254 Fern street, West Hartford, 7, Connecticut, and enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for a personal reply. There is no charge.

Use leftover vegetables in soups, omelets, and creamed dishes. They may be sieved for use in the soups, folded into the omelet, and added to the sauce for the creamed dish.

HOSPITAL BOARD

prepaid maternal care plan that has been in use at the hospital for the past two years.

The prepayment plan has been helpful to the hospital and maternity patients alike. It has reduced credit losses to the hospital and makes available to the patient a flat price for normal maternity care. The directors emphasized that the prepayment plan is not an ultimatum nor is it the policy of the hospital to deny admittance when payment cannot be made in advance.

Issue Statement on Plan
Dr. R. W. Gifford, president of the medical staff, will discuss this program in detail at the next meeting of the medical staff.

The directors authorized the following statement:

"While we encourage the prepayment plan as a general policy, it is not a rigid policy. It is no reflection on anyone's credit nor does it deny admittance to anyone. The plan has cut down our losses materially and this, in turn, has enabled us to adopt a reasonable flat rate which is very definitely to the advantage of the patient. The plan is a good one and is one that serves the best interest of the hospital and the maternity patient alike.

"The few criticisms we have had are due to misunderstandings and occasional failure of the physician to explain clearly the plan, its merits and purposes. We are confident the members of the medical staff of the hospital and the county medical society will assist us in making clear the program so that no misunderstandings will arise in the future."

Carl A. Baum, president of the board, presided. Other directors attending the meeting were: Edgar C. McDannell, Arendtsville; John Bream, Cashtown; Richard Livingston, New Oxford; Guy Stock, Bendersville; William Scheeringer, Littlestown; John A. Hauser, Biglerville; H. Harold Miller, Henry M. Scharf, Philip M. Jones, Dr. Frank H. Kramer, Edmund W. Thomas, William Durbin and Joseph E. Codori, all of Gettysburg.
